In Collin County, amidst our thriving neighborhoods, some of our neighbors face a different reality: hunger. In McKinney, a city bursting with life, there are places where fresh, healthy food is hard to find. Here, something as simple as having leftovers is a rare comfort for many families.

In these areas, the impact is deep. When their pantry shelves are empty it affects family's health and even a child's education.

But there's hope. Community Lifeline Center is here, working tirelessly to be a source of relief for those in need. Our goal is clear and bold: to make sure no one in our community lacks the basic necessity of food.

And you can be a part of this change. Join us at "Food for Thought: Legacy of Leftovers" on February 20th. It's not just an event – it's a gathering of hearts and minds, dedicated to making a real difference.

with care,

Michal Jiri
